PIERCE FAMILY LINE

Traced from Captain Michael Pierce, b. 1615, Eng;
and Scituate, Mass., 1646

Through Shubal Pierce, sixth generation,
"minute-man" in the Revolutionary War.

To the Harriet N. Frost - Dr. Amos Pierce ;

To the Franklin E. Pierce, 9th generation

Through the 10th, 11th, and 12th generations (1960)

See: Pierce Family by Frederick Clifton Pierce
for all data occurring before 1889.

Through Harriet Newell Frost; heritage from Hon. Cephas Kent, Gov. of Vermont (first); John Frost, Revolutionary ancestor; and William Brewster, of the ; "Mayflower Index" can be traced.

PEIRCE COAT OF ARMS.

Three ravens rising sable
Fesse humette.
Motto - Dixit et fecit - He said and he did ravens bare with olive branch in beak

PIERCE ARMS

Arms - argent, a fesse - hummette gules (res), between three ravens rising sable.

Crest: - A dove with olive branch in it's beak.

Motto: "Dixet et Fecit" - (He said and did).

See: Pierce Family, F. C. Pierce, Albany, 1869

The argent, or shield, denotes the high honor of the Pierce who was the first bearer of this shield.

The fesse - girdle - represents the military belt, or baldric, used of old at the investiture of nobility or knights.

The red, or gules, color signifies military heroism and as the extremities of the belt do not reach the side of the shield - or is "hummette" - we are told that the bearer cut the belt from some distinguished enemy of his country and took him prisoner.

The Raven, or Crow, shows the self-made man of strong will power, eager for justice, the friend of men in authority; furious for prey from enemies.

The Dove of Peace in the Crest somewhat counteracts the characteristics of the Raven. It means that Pierce was an advocate of Peace; hospitable.

The Dove was allowed in the Elysian Fields of Mythology, from which all ravenous birds were driven away.

The Dove is the "Bringer of good tidings" - as in the time of Noah - a useful, constant, pure, messenger.

ART OF HERALDRY, Arthur - Chas. Fox - Davis.

Fess - A horizontal stripe; per fesse - a division across

Blazon - To describe and explain a display of bearings.

Achievement - The whole display.

Escutcheon - The broad surface upon which the bearings are charged.

A Shield - In case of a man, not an ecclesiastic.

A single escutcheon may be complete with one single division. Thus, a horizontal line divides the chief, or top of the field at one-third of it's height from the remainder of the field.

WILLIAM BREWSTER

From Brewster Genealogy by Jones

Sent to Helen by Mrs. John Barton

William Brewster, "their reverend Elder, was born probably at Scrooby, Nottingham, Eng., in the latter part of 1566 or early in 1567, as is shown in an affidavit made at Leyden, June 25, 1609 when he was 42 years old. He was the son of that William Brewster who, in Jan. 1575 was appointed by Archbishop Sandys, receiver of Scrooby and bailiff of his manor house there. He attended Cambridge Univ., having matriculated Dec. 31580, but did not remain until graduation. In Aug. 1585 he was an assistant of William Davison, then clerk of the Privy Council, and accompanied him on his embassy to the Netherlands. When the ambassador returned and was made Sec. of State, his young and trusted secretary returned and continued with him until Davison's unmerited downfall in 1587. At that time Brewster returned to Scrooby. Upon his father's death in 1590, he was himself appointed "Post", or Master of the Court Mails at Scrooby, holding that office unt'l Sept. 1607.

During these years, the Separatist Congregation which later emigrated to Holland, was gathered from neighboring villages under the guidance of Clifton and Robinson; meeting for worship in the old manor house at Scrooby, where Wm. Brewster entertained them with "great love", and was their special stay and help. When in 1607, they made their first unsuccessful effort to leave England; Brewster and Bradford were among those imprisoned. Finally the little band was settled under Robison, minister at Leyden, Holland. Brewster supported himself by teaching English to students in the university, and as a printer. He was very scholarly, writing books in Latin.

Upon his arrival in Leyden, he had been made ruling elder of the church and as such accompanied the Pilgrims on the Mayflower to Plymouth. His wife, Mary, born about 1559, accompanied him; and died at Plymouth, April 27, 1627. He was the 4th signer of the Mayflower Compact, and was thought by many to be the man who wrote it.

During the early years of the colony, when there was no minister, Wm. Brewster "taught" twice on the Sabbath. That he was the moral, religious, and spiritual leader at that early time of peril and struggle, and its chief civil advisor and trusted guide until the time of his death, is quite certain. He has been called the "Chief of the Pilgrims"; and the "First Apostle" of both civil and religious freedom in this country. But for Wm. Brewster's ecclesiastical position, he would have been governor of the colony; but at that time it was deemed incompatible to vest civil and ecclesiastical office in the same person. However, at that time, the "power of the Church was superior to the Civil power". He was the heart, brain and soul of the new Plymouth enterprise; without whom it could scarcely have been attempted; but with whom, it became the most memorable and successful colonization on the American continent after the discovery by Columbus.

Governor Bradford, the excellent governor of the colony for 30 years, felt he owed much to the training, teaching, and companionship of his old neighbor, comrade and lifelong friend. He wrote that Brewster "was foremost in our adventure in England; and in Holland; and here in Plymouth". At the time they arrived in Plymouth, Wm. Brewster was next to the oldest in the group, being 56. Bradford was 32; Winslow, 26; Alden, 21; Carver, was the oldest.

At the time of Brewster's death he had a library of 400 books. He had 62 books in Latin, and 93 books that were commentaries on translations of the Bible. It is believed that because Brewster's library was always available to the public; that it probably formed the First Public Library in America.

There are islands in the Boston Harbor that are called, "The Brewsters", in honor of this famous man. In 1703 the town of "Brewster", named in honor of Wm. Brewster, was incorporated in Barnstable County. Seven years later, its population was 1112; and in 1900, it was only 829. It is said that most of the present population can trace their ancestry back to Elder Brewster through his daughter, Patience, who married Governor Prence. (ed. note; We descend through Patience, too)

Scrooby Manor, the last English home of Wm. Brewster, was a most interesting place. The Rev. Ashbel Steele, in The Life and Times of Wm. Brewster says, "Scrooby Manor, even as far back as Wm., The Conqueror, if not earlier, was a possession of the Archbishops of York; and was for them a place of frequent sojourn, as well as a convenient resting-place on their journeys. Here slept Margaret, Queen of Scotland, daughter of Henry VII, on her way to that kingdom. Here Cardinal Woolsey passed weeks ministering many deeds of charity. Henry VIII, with gallant company on his northern progress, in 1541, lodged here. Leland, the ancient historian, describes it as it was on his visit in 1538 - as a "great Manor Place", standing within a moat, and belonging to the Archbishop of York. It was built around two courts, and all of the timber except the front of the Hall, which was of brick. There was also a "fair park" belonging to it.

One hundred years after Wm. Brewster had made this place his home, and had held meetings with many others who later made the trip to Plymouth with him; the Great Scrooby Manor fell to decay. Only a portion which had been the chapel and the kitchens, remained, and had been incorporated into a farmhouse. The chapel was used as a cow-house. Its rafters were of carved oak. Today, one of those carved rafters is in the Congregational Library in Boston. Negotiations had begun in 1908 by the Mayflower Society to purchase this property which centuries had been the scene of the birth of the Pilgrim Church.

FROST ARMS

Granted to Rev. Wm. Frost of Thorpe, Norfolk County, Eng.

Arms - Silver argent, a chevron sable between three pellets, each charged with a trefoil.

Crest - a trefoil between two wings, all azure.

Motto - "E terra ad colem" - (From Earth to Heaven).

See Frost Genealogy, Chas. Frost

Symbolism - The silver (argent) shield signifies that the man upon whom the honor was conferred by his sovereign, was a man of pearl-like purity of character.

The chevron - like a roof - is the symbol of protection; and being black - the most ancient of colors - ("Darkness was made before God made Light", Genesis I:2) - denotes prudence, profundity, constancy, silence, imperialism, and subtlety.

The pellet - or round black object - indicates a cannon-ball; force of action; or executive ability.

The shamrock - an Irish connection.

The two wings mean celerity and protection - supposed to be eagle's wings unless otherwise specified. The wings bend without breaking.

FROST FAMILY IN AMERICA

FROM: "FIRST FROST ANCESTOR IN AMERICA" by Thos. G. Frost
Ph.D., L.L.D., and Edward L. Frost, M.D., printed 1909, Buffalo; also information gathered in Newberry Library, Chicago and other places by Henry K. Goodrich.

Extracts from American Family Antiquity by Albert Welles, Vol. I, "Some idea may be formed of the eminence and importance of the members of the Frost Family from the account given in the Rymer's Foedora of the acts of the Kings of England. Also of the possessions of the family in various parts of Great Britain, by reference to the "Rotuli Hundredorum" (Rolls of the Hundreds) of England, published by the command of His Majesty, King George III A D 1812. Where they may be found holding manors and public offices in many of the counties of the Kingdom. They were intimately connected with King Edward III in the 14th century.

Rymer's Foedora Vol. 2, Part 2, p. 1114 - 14 Edward III,
A D 1340: "Summons To Attend Council".

"The king issued a summons to Reginaldo de Canductu of London and to a large number of gentlemen whose names are given to meet him, the King, in Council -- at Westminster to deliberate with regard to important and urgent affairs touching his,
the King's, honor, and the safety and welfare of the Kingdom.
Among these names we find that of Walter Frost. -dated at Kensington, 20th Feby., 1340."

"Thomas Frost, merchant of London, appointed Alderman of Calais, France, with regard to the greater liberty granted to Aldermen and citizens of the city of Calais. The King issued letters certifying that by the assent of the Prelates, Lords, and others of His Council, the "Fair" for clothes and other merchandise going out of the Kingdom of England, Wales, Ireland, and Scotland shall be held at the City of Calais; and that 26
English merchants shall be chosen, two to be Mayors, and 24 Aldermen to administer the affairs of the city, and that they have a common seal. It provides for the election of new members for the ensuing year, and names the merchants who are to constitute the first Board of Managers; and among these appears the name of Thomas Frost, dated at the Palace of Westminster, 1st March, 1363." - - - Rymer's Foedora, Vol 3, part 2, p. 692

I. John Frost Line

John Frost, the oldest of the children of Edmund and Thomasine, and the only one who was not a native of Cambridge, was born in England about 1632; hence he was about three years of age when his parents emigrated from Ipswich. He married June 6, 1666, REBECCA, daughter of Thomas Andrew. He died before Sept. 30, 1672, since on that day administration was granted to the widow, Rebecca, for herself and three children.

She married, Feb. 9, 1674, GEORGE JACOBS, Jr., of Danvers, and was mixed up in the witchcraft delusion in 1692, along with the whole Jacobs family. On May 10 of that year, George Jacobs, Sr., and his granddaughter were arrested, and four days later warrants were issued for the arrest of Daniel Andrew, George Jacobs, Jr., his wife, Rebecca, and six others. Andrews and Jacobs, Jr., heard of the warrant and skipped out, but the others were arrested and tried for witchcraft.

The victims of the delusion, both male and female, were stripped and searched for "witchmarks". Marshall Herrick, who seems to have been quite an expert witchfinder, found upon George Jacobs, Sr., "a witch-teat about one-quarter inch long or better, with a sharp point dropping downward so that I took a pin and run it through said teat; but there was neither water, blood or corruption, nor any other matter." Jacobs was convicted on the fifth, and executed on the nineteenth of August, 1692.

"A tradition exists that the body of Jacobs was buried on his own farm. Remains, undoubtedly his, were exhumed in 1864, and were re-interred in the same place."

In January, 1693, a new Court appointed by Governor Phipps, sat at Salem, acquitted Rebecca Jacobs and Martha Jacobs, the latter probably granddaughter of George, Sr., who was arrested with him.

(Ed. note: These Frosts were cousins, I think, of Harriet Newell Frost, in the Pierce line.)

Captain William Pierce, b. abt. 1590, m. Jane -----; res. Boston.

In 1624 he owned a house and lot in Boston. He was killed in the Bahamas, at New Providence, July 13, 1641. In the early history of the colonies he was the most celebrated master of ships that came into the waters of New England. In 1629 he commanded the renowned "Mayflower" and in her he took a company from Holland as far as the Bay on their way to Plymouth.

Captain Michael Pierce, military officer; brother of William; and OUR ANCESTOR, was born in England. He emigrated to America about 1645, locating first in Higham in 1646; removing the following year to Scituate, Mass., where he resided when he met his untimely death.

In Scituate he purchased land in the Conihassett, in 1647. His house was on Cohasset Road, one mile from the present North Meeting-House at the wellknown place formerly owned by Elijah Pierce (6th generation).

While there is no record of Captain Pierce's family in Scituate, Hobart's Journal records a "Persis, dau. of Michael Pierce baptized, 1646"; also, "Michael Pierce's daughter, born 1662"; and "Michael Pierce's wife died 1662".

The Narragansetts early in the spring of 1676 had committed ravages in Rhode Island. Parties had even penetrated to Plymouth and killed a number of inhabitants. On this alarm, Captain Michael Pierce of Scituate, with a company of fifty Englishmen and twenty friendly Indians from Cape Cod, was ordered to pursue the Indians toward Rhode Island. He proceeded without any re-encounter, near to Pawtucket, in that part which had been called Attleboro Gore, when he discovered that there were Indians near him, but not suspecting that Ganochett was there. He, therefore, ventured to cross the river and commence the attack but soon found himself in the presence of an overwhelming force. To fly was impossible; and to retreat in order before such an enemy was equally desperate. His only resource was to fall back to the river's bank, in order to avoid being surrounded, and make the sacrifice of himself and his brave men as costly as possible to the foe. But the Indians, having a large force, soon sent a party across the river to attack in the rear. This surprise only induced the captain to change the front of his company by placing them back-to-back. In this position, they fought until nearly every man fell, with a bravery as great as that at Thermopylae, and deserving of as great a success.

Captain Pierce fell earlier than many others. Honor is due one of the friendly Indians, called Amos, who continued to stand by his commander and fight until affairs were utterly desperate. He then escaped by blacking his face with powder as he saw the enemy had done, and so passed through their army un-noticed.

Captain Pierce resided in that part of Scituate which was incorporated as South Scituate, Feb. 14, 1849. Captain Pierce assisted in erecting the first saw-mill which was burned by the Indians May 20, 1676. It was only a short distance from this place that Samuel Woodworth wrote "The Old Oaken Bucket", "The wide-spreading pond" and the "mill that stood by it", "the dairy house", the "rock where the cataract fell", and even "the old wall" if not the "moss-covered bucket" itself, may still be seen just as the poet has described them.
